ATLANTA (UPI) — The United States Sunday mourned Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and the slain integration leader's successor promised grieving Negroes "We shall overcome."

Thousands, including his wife, children and parents, filed past King's glass-covered casket in Sister's Chapel on the campus of Spelman College, the predominantly Negro institution from which King was graduated in 1948.

Mourners waited in lines for blocks to file past King's African mahogany casket.

Crash Kills Auto Ace Jim Clark

HOCKENHEIM, Germany (UPI) — Two-time world auto racing champion Jim Clark of Scotland was killed Sunday when he crashed here in a European championship Formula II race.

A Hockenheim police spokesman said Clark "probably died instantly" when his Lotus-Cosworth-Ford crashed off the track and somersaulted several times.

The 32-year-old Clark, known as the "Flying Scot," won the world title in 1963 and 1965.

Doctors said he was dead on arrival at Heidelberg University Clinic.

Clark became the youngest driver ever to win the world Formula I championship in 1963 and won it again in 1965. The same year he became the first British driver ever to win the Indianapolis 500 race.

King's widow, Coretta and their four children — Yoland Denise, Martin Luther III, Dexter Scott and Bernice — visited the chapel at mid-afternoon. Mrs. King and the youngsters were composed.

King's father, The Rev. M.L. King Sr., collapsed in sobs when he viewed the body. "He never hated anybody, he never hated anybody," the bespectacled, white-haired minister said. He was helped away but a few moments later returned under his own power and looked down, (Continued on Back Page, Col. 1)

Johnson Leads Prayers for King

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson led the U.S. in prayers Sunday, a national day of mourning he proclaimed for the slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King.

The President worshiped at Roman Catholic services at St. Dominic's in a downtown slum area. He was accompanied by his daughter Luci, 20, and her husband, Patrick J. Nugent.

BALTIMORE ASKS FOR U.S. TROOPS

Compiled from AP & UPI

Baltimore Sunday became the third city in the nation to call for help from federal troops as racial violence continued to rock the country in the wake of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King.

Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew called for federal troops at 6:12 p.m. Sunday and his request was granted four minutes later by Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark.

A White House spokesman said 2,000 troops had been alerted for Baltimore duty and added, "If the governor wants more than 2,000 he will get them."

He said the first troops being sent to Baltimore were several hundred paratroopers of the 18th Airborne Arty. Brigade from Fort Bragg, N.C.

In his appeal for government help, Agnew had said police and 6,000 National Guardsmen called to duty in Baltimore had been unable to "suppress this insurrection."

U.S. Position in Viet Never Better: Westy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland, with President Johnson at his side, said Sunday after two days of policy talks here, "militarily we have never been in better relative position in South Vietnam."

Johnson escorted the U.S. commander for Vietnam before live television and radio microphones in the White House driveway and made two announcements of his own:

—Westmoreland, leaving at once to return to his command, will stop in California to brief former President Dwight D. Eisenhower on the Vietnam talks that began at the White House at breakfast time Saturday.

—After the general reaches Saigon Tuesday, Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker will fly to Washington for meetings with Johnson and other top officials in the latter part of the week.

After their brief joint appearance, Johnson and Westmoreland flew together by helicopter to nearby Andrews Air Force Base, Md., so the chief executive could continue their conversations and give his battlefield commander a personal sendoff. Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford went with them.

Westmoreland, reading from a prepared statement, said that "the spirit of the offensive is now prevalent throughout Vietnam" on the allied side. He said that advantage is being taken of what he termed "the enemy's weakened military position."

Palm Sunday Draws 5,000 to Holy Land

JERUSALEM (AP) — Some 5,000 chanting Christians carrying palm fronds began Easter celebrations in the Holy City with a Palm Sunday procession, the largest Christian pilgrimage here in more than 20 years.

The pilgrims, singing "Hosannah, the Son of David" and psalms in a dozen languages in the clear mountain air, followed the path Christ took for his triumphal entry into Jerusalem before his crucifixion.

They came from many countries to spend the first Easter in a politically undivided Jerusalem for a generation.

In Jordan, many Christians marked Palm Sunday with mourning, because the holy places are now in Israeli hands.

The procession began under a cobalt blue sky from Beitphage on the Mount of Olives, near the 2,000-year-old olive groves around the Garden of Gethsemane.

It was here where Jesus is believed to have sent for the donkey on which he rode into old Jerusalem. A Franciscan chapel now stands there near where Christ is said to have (Continued on Back Page, Col. 3)

Marines Kill 48 In Ground Action Near Khe Sanh

S&S Vietnam Bureau

SAIGON—A company of U.S. Marines killed 48 enemy soldiers in a battle two miles northwest of Khe Sanh, and U.S. Army and Vietnamese infantrymen found 98 Communist bodies, killed in previous actions, as Operation Pegasus/Lam Son 207 continued to be the focal point in ground action Saturday.

The huge operation covers the western half of Quang Tri province surrounding the embattled Khe Sanh area where U.S. soldiers, Marines and Vietnamese soldiers are attempting to run down the remnants of the large Communist force which once surrounded the strategic plateau position.

Air Strikes Hit Lower N. Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — American bombers struck only in the extreme southern end of North Vietnam again Saturday for a third straight day of limiting their strikes to just the lower half of the area authorized by President Johnson.

Official reports from the U.S. Military Command Sunday showed the strikes were confined to the area from the city of Vinh southward to the Demilitarized Zone.

This stretch of the lower 110 miles of North Vietnam is only about half of the bombing area below the 20th Parallel which President Johnson announced in his bid to get peace negotiations started.

The 20th Parallel is 225 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone.

In the air strikes over North Vietnam Saturday, carrier-based Navy planes struck mostly in the Vinh area. The farthest penetration north was an attack against a railroad and highway bridge 12 miles north-northwest of Vinh or about 122 miles above the Demilitarized Zone.

There was still no official acknowledgment that American fliers were reducing Johnson's 225-mile northern boundary by half, but the limited raids of the last three days indicated that was the case.

Other targets in the Vinh area, all south of the city, were a transshipment point, two highway bridges, a storage area and a ferry.

B52s Blast A Shau Area

S&S Vietnam Bureau

SAIGON — U.S. Air Force giant B52 bombers struck eight times in the A Shau valley late Saturday and during the early morning hours Sunday.

The eight-engine jets dumped tons of explosives along the major Viet Cong infiltration route leading out of Laos toward Hue, where the heaviest fighting of the Tet offensive occurred in February.

A U.S. spokesman said the raids did not necessarily mean there is a large Communist buildup in the valley, but that the targets hit along the dense jungle valley happened to be "higher priority" than other targets in South Vietnam during the time span.

In the eight raids the bombers hit enemy truck parks, bunkers and troop concentrations nine to 19 miles northwest of the small village of A Shau, near the Laotian border.

In the battle Saturday, a Marine company ran up against an estimated North Vietnamese company in entrenched position while on a reconnaissance sweep northwest of Khe Sanh.

While artillery hit the enemy positions the Leathernecks began advancing.

Under the heavy pressure the Communists broke and ran, leaving 48 of their dead behind. Four U.S. Marines were killed and 36 seriously wounded in the battle.

Vietnamese Rangers reported finding 70 Communist bodies during a sweep within about 600 yards of the Khe Sanh perimeter. The enemy soldiers reportedly had been killed by air strikes and artillery fire earlier.

Four miles southwest of the sprawling allied base, units of the U.S. 1st Air Cav. Div. found 28 enemy bodies during a four-hour period.

Other 1st Cav. units reported killing 14 enemy during a short fight two miles east of the base on Highway 9 during the late afternoon.

One U.S. soldier was killed and 47 wounded, earlier in the day, when a unit from the 1st Cav.'s 2nd Brigade was hit by a heavy mortar attack two miles southeast of the base.

Ground action throughout the rest of the republic was described as light and scattered. However the U.S. command said that light fighting around Saigon during the day pushed the total number of enemy killed in Operation Quyet Thang to 2,613.

VC Wreck Road Bridges

SAIGON (AP) — Four Vietnamese military installations were shelled and three bridges were damaged by explosives set off by the Viet Cong Saturday, South Vietnamese military spokesmen reported Sunday.

The bridges were on National Highway 1 near Phan Rang, a coastal city about 160 miles northeast of Saigon. One bridge was destroyed, the spokesmen said, and the other two were damaged heavily. The three structures were within three miles of each other on the main north-south highway stretching across the country.

South Viet Prefers Neutral Talk Site

SAIGON (AP)—Foreign Minister Tran Van Do said Sunday that Vietnam prefers a neutral country as the site for peace talks if they are held.

Do, who at the 1954 Geneva negotiations represented what later became the South Vietnamese government, said present thinking is that talks should be held either at Geneva, Tokyo or New Delhi.

He ruled out Paris or the capitals of Communist countries such as the Soviet Union and Poland. President Johnson has offered to meet with Hanoi at Geneva "or any other suitable place," but he was not more specific.

Do also said the return to Saigon from Paris of lawyer Nguyen Dac Khe had nothing to do with possible negotiations. Khe was an adviser to Do at the 1954 Geneva talks and returned to South Vietnam last Tuesday after living for many years in France.

One Saigon newspaper reported that President Nguyen Van Thieu had asked Khe and Nguyen Quoc Dinh, also an adviser at the 1954 talks and now a law professor in Paris, to help work out plans for possible negotiations.

DOD Requests Equal Payments For Separation

S&S Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Defense Department has asked the comptroller general of the U.S. to reconsider his decision denying the $30-a-month family separation allowance (FSA) to servicemen with dependents living in a home not subject to their "management and control."

The comptroller's decision affects a large number of married servicemen whose wives or children have moved in with friends and relatives while they are on duty in Southeast Asia, Korea, other short tour areas or at sea.

Assistant Defense Secretary Robert N. Anthony reviewed the background of the FSA in a March 28 letter to the comptroller general. Anthony asked him to reconsider his Feb. 9 decision and said, "I would hope that you will permit us to continue these payments until the matter is submitted to and considered by the Congress. Pending receipt of your reply, no action will be taken by the Department of Defense to implement the Feb. 9 decision."

FSA was enacted in October, 1963, to offset, in a modest way, the additional expenses of plumbers, electricians, carpenters and general handymen which the family budget must bear when the husband is away on a short overseas tour.

"Today many members of the service, particularly younger members—reside in apartments where the additional items of expenses referred to . . . are the responsibility of the landlord," Anthony pointed out.

"The fact that none of these additional expenses are separately incurred by the member's dependents is not—and should not be—controlling in determining the member's entitlement to the $30-a-month allowance.

"If we are correct in the assumption that neither the law—nor your decision—requires the actual incurrence of additional expenses . . . it is somewhat difficult to completely rationalize the magic of the requirement that the dependent must live in a residence subject to the member's management and control to be entitled to the allowance."

Courses Set For Officers

S&S Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Army War College will begin correspondence courses this year for senior officers unable to attend the regular residence instruction at Carlisle, Pa.

Up to 200 regular and reserve officers on active duty and those on an active reserve status will be able to enroll each year.

The two-year course will parallel resident instruction and will consist of three main areas of graduate study: strategic appraisal, strategy and military planning.

Selection criteria includes completion of the command and general staff college resident or non-resident courses or the equivalent. A baccalaureate degree is also considered highly desirable, the Army says.

Applications for enrollment must be submitted to Headquarters DA, Washington, D.C., 20310, Attn. OPO-OPD-OPXC (Mil Sch), by July 1 each year. Details are contained in circular 359-63 of April 3.

Pigeon Gets The Message

PHUOC VINH, Vietnam (IO)

— During a recent mortar attack on the 101st Airborne Div's, 3rd Brigade base camp here, a carrier pigeon being trained to carry messages back from the field suddenly led the way to the protective bunker.

"I am usually the first man from our commo platoon in the bunker, but this time that bird scooted right past me," said Spec. 4 Richard D. Seymour. "I can't figure out how he knew about heading for protection."

No one had to show the pigeon the way. He would not leave the bunker until the "all clear" blared out over the base.

Arm Flaps Get Plane Off Safely

DAK TO, Vietnam (IO)

— It takes skill, hard work and plenty of perseverance to run an airfield. But for the men of the 1st Platoon, 125th Air Traffic Co. at Dak To, it's the extra effort in getting through an occasional "off-beat" day that is remembered.

Like recently when Spec. 5 Marvin E. White of Saucier, Miss. was on duty in the mini-tower overlooking the runway at the Ivy's 1st Brigade command camp. A C45 civilian charter air taxi was circling above apparently unable to make radio contact with the tower for landing instructions.

"I cleared him to land by popping a green flare which is standard procedure in these cases," said White. But the hard part was yet to come.

The plane touched down on the runway and taxied up to the terminal where the passengers got off. The pilot then taxied back onto the runway and waited for take-off instructions.

"Without a radio, I was at a loss for directing him," continued the tower chief. "I climbed into the tower and went into my act — flapping my arms like a bird and pointing east; then pointing to the west end with my right arm, I made a propeller motion with my left hand, signaling him to run up his engines at that point."

Although unusual, White's coordinated effort consisted of standard aviation signals which he had picked up from ground crews.

Hot Potato Game Too Hot for VC

TAY NINH, Vietnam (IO) — A 25th Inf. Div. rifleman and an enemy sniper recently engaged in a dangerous version of "hot potato" which proved deadly to the Viet Cong.

The game occurred on a 4th Bn., 9th Inf. Manchu's reconnaissance in force operation near Saigon.

Spec. 4 James Kyzour rifleman for the Bravo Manchu was pointman for his squad and received Viet Cong sniper fire.

"I kept trying to get closer to get him. He threw a grenade at me that hit a log about a foot away and rolled and hit my rifle, I frantically grabbed at it and threw it back. A few seconds later he threw it back, hitting me in the leg. At this point I felt like laughing, only this game was for keeps," Kyzour commented.

"I threw it back and when nothing happened, I heaved one of my own. This one exploded. When I checked it out, the VC was dead. They just don't make 'potatoes' like we do," said Kyzour.

Ocean-Going R&R Rough On Nerves

DA NANG, Vietnam (PAO)— Everyone knows about the postman's holiday, but have you ever heard of a boatswain's mate's holiday?

Land-based at Camp Faulkner, Da Nang East, Vietnam, with U.S. Naval Mobile Construction En. 128, Boatswain's Mate 2.C. John B. Searcy, Lawrenceburg, Ky., was "seasick" for the sea.

"They didn't tell me where the ship was going", he said, "but no sooner had we cast off than I found out we were heading north with supplies".

"It was great being back at sea, but after pulling into port near the DMZ and beginning to unload, a rocket and mortar attack in the area forced us to pull out in a hurry! We even left the captain on the beach in our rapid withdrawal (He rejoined the ship shortly thereafter; via a small boat). It was too close for comfort for me", he stated. . . . "What a way to spend a holiday! The ship even had pieces of shrapnel on the decks. . . ."

Next time, Searcy thinks he will stick to a less exciting R&R on land.

Just Passing Through

Some Big Monkey Rattles Soldiers

VUNG DAT AM, Vietnam (IO) — Sitting in their makeshift poncho hut late one night, two 4th Div. soldiers were chatting about old times at home. Suddenly one asked, "What was that crunching outside?"

"I was just about to say something," recalled Pfc. Gordon Decker, A Co., 1st Bn., 22nd Inf., "when I heard brush snapping and could see something coming toward us."

The pair crept out of the hut for a look.

"It was real dark, said Spec. 4 Bill Ganos. "All I could see was a glaring pair of eyes."

Grabbing their air mattresses and poncho liners, they threw them at the oncoming figure.

"We left in a hurry," said Decker. "We didn't want to stick around to see what would happen next."

Then a big orangutan hustled through the hut and out the back door.

An amusing sidelight occurred when Decker ran to the company command bunker to report the incident.

"I looked up," remarked Spec. 4 John Rogers of Los Angeles, Calif., "and saw something rushing toward me, a cape flapping wildly behind him. It looked like Batman."

It turned out that when Ganos dashed from the hut, he had become entangled in a mosquito net.

Feds Tracking 'Man on Run' in Killing of King

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark said Sunday federal investigators are on the trail of "one man on the run" in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.—and they are hoping for an early arrest.

"We have a name we're working on," Clark said. "Whether it proves to be the right name remains to be seen."

Clark said there is no evidence, so far, that more than one individual was involved in the fatal shooting last Thursday in Memphis of Dr. King, leader of the drive to attain civil rights through non-violent action.

of the siege of Khe Sanh near the Demilitarized Zone. Westmoreland said the initiative has been wrested from the enemy in that sector.

The White House made public a message which Westmoreland dispatched to Lt. Gen. Richard Cushman, commander of American forces in the northernmost provinces of Vietnam.

Hailing the relief of Khe Sanh, Westmoreland said:

"To all hands: Well done."

Included in Westmoreland's statement were repetitions of these two points made frequently by administration spokesmen before:

—The Communist Tet offensive early this year did not bring the enemy its principal objectives.

—The South Vietnamese military forces fought well during that Red attack and are getting better all the time.

No Old Hacks Wanted

AUCKLAND (AP) — New Zealand's newest hotel does not want old taxi cabs waiting around it. The 14-storey, 332-room Hotel Intercontinental has banned taxis older than 1962 models from plying for hire in its grounds. This rules out one-quarter of the city's taxis. The hotel taxi stand is on private property.

Since Friday, when Clark held a news conference in Memphis, additional evidence has been gathered and "the trail has lengthened" that leads to King's killer, the attorney general said.

"We know quite a bit more than we did two days ago," he added. But he declined to specify the places where the trail leads.

"We hope to have an early conclusion to the investigation, followed by indictment, trial and conviction," he said.

Clark indicated that the eventual trial would probably be left to the courts of Tennessee.

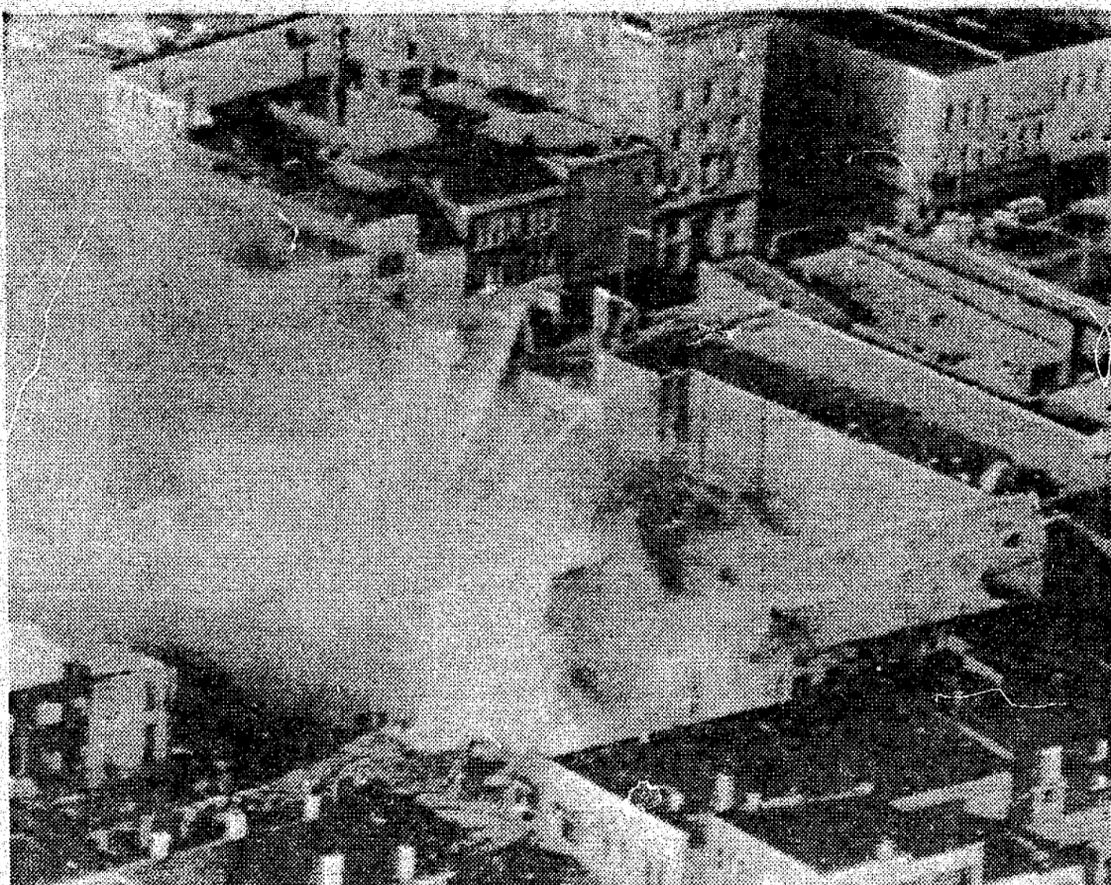

Allies Back Johnson: Rusk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk returned to Washington Sunday from a Southeast Asia Treaty Organization meeting in New Zealand and declared that allied nations with troops in Vietnam strongly support President Johnson's peace efforts in Vietnam.

Rusk told newsmen upon his arrival at Andrews AFB, that "everyone was in good spirits and believing we are making progress in Vietnam."

"We made proposals to Hanoi. So far as I know, we have not had an answer."

Rusk said the proposals were presented to the North Vietnamese in Laos.

Indiana Holocaust Toll Now 39

Firemen spray water and chemicals into hole where explosion and fire ravaged downtown Richmond, Ind., Saturday. The death toll climbed to 39 Sunday and 32 persons still were missing. Only 20 of the victims had been identified by Sunday night.

Of the 91 hurt, 18 remained in the hospital, 3 in critical condition. The blast is believed to have been caused by leaking gas which, when ignited, detonated gunpowder stored in the basement of a sporting goods store. (AP Radiophoto) wept when he saw the city. The procession, made up of 30 groups, was led by Bishop Jacob Belitritie, co-adjutor of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre here, and Msgr. Leno Capello, head custodian of Terra Sancta (Holy Land).

The pilgrims, including many Christian Arabs from Israel and the Arab lands conquered by Israel last June and monks and nuns from Holy Land monasteries, walked uphill towards the dun-colored walls of the old city.

The procession entered the old city through St. Stephen's gate, where the Israelis broke through Arab defenses last June.

It ended at St. Anne's Monastery on the Via Dolorosa, where ancient hymns were sung.

Baltimore Asks Aid

termed the situation "out of the hands of civil rights leaders" and called for the arrest of law-breakers.

As the tension and violence heightened in Baltimore with four known dead and new waves of arson and looting, the situation was reported calmer in some major cities wracked by violence.

This included both Chicago and Washington, D.C., where thousands of federal troops are patrolling streets.

The flames had died down and the smoke was clearing over the capital as President Johnson flew Sunday over parts of Washington that were hardest hit by burnings and rioting. The President made his inspection flight after his jet helicopter had taken Gen. William C. Westmoreland to Andrews AFB, Md., for a flight to Vietnam.

Officials believe the force of 11,600 federal troops and 1,400 police have suppressed violence in the capital but they say damage so far is well over the $10 million mark. The toll of known dead in Washington was eight.

In Chicago, where 5,000 federal troops have augmented 15,000 National Guardsmen, all was reported quiet along the 28-block stretch of the city's West Side, where hundreds of fires were set and looters ran wild Friday and Saturday. Scattered violence was reported on the South Side.

Violence, however, spread to the nearby industrial city of Joliet where four policemen and four firemen were injured. National Guardsmen were rushed to the city.

The death toll in Chicago Sunday was 11, the highest in the nation.

New violence caused Pennsylvania Gov. Raymond Shafer to declare a state of emergency in Pittsburgh. He ordered 3,000 National Guardsmen to stand by near the city's Hill District after a wave of firebombing and looting. He also clamped controls on the sale of gasoline in the city.

In other cities hit by violence:

—A Negro was killed and two others wounded — along with two policemen — during a 90-minute gun battle in Oakland, Calif. The Negroes were reported to be members of the militant and armed Black Panther organization.

—About 200 persons were arrested in Mobile, Ala., after a curfew was ordered to curb rioting.

—National Guardsmen were ordered into Wilmington and Goldsboro, N.C., to quell rioting. Disturbances were also reported in Raleigh and Greensboro.

—Roving bands of juveniles smashed windows and threw firebombs in Richmond, Va., before being scattered by state police.

A total of 62 cities are reported to have been hit by outbreaks of racial violence since Thursday, many of them small and normally quiet centers such as Hamilton, N.Y.; Carbondale, Ill.; Albion, Mich., and Gainesville, Fla.

Freight Train Derailed

HILLSBORO, Ala. (AP) — Sixty-four cars of a freight train were derailed about a mile west of this northwest Alabama town Sunday, the highway patrol said. Police said there were no reports of injuries. It was not immediately determined what caused the derailment.

Atlanta Leads Tribute to King

weeping, into the coffin. Then he left.

And the violence which flared in the aftermath of King's death last Thursday night continued to plague such cities as Washington, Chicago, Pittsburgh and Detroit.

King's successor as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) appealed for an end to the violence. Dr. Ralph Abernathy, a Baptist minister, said in his sermon the turmoil was caused by "just folk, poor people that had a hard time."

Abernathy entitled his sermon "A Letter to Martin" and said the rioters were "denying our theory" of nonviolence "for they do not see a way out."

"But I want you to know, Martin," he said, "that we're going to find them a way out. I have not given up the faith. I shall stand before the nation with black people behind me because I know we shall overcome."

King's casket was placed on view at Sister's Chapel at 6:30 p.m. Saturday and mourners filed past it throughout the night. By Sunday afternoon, the lines stretched more than a mile.

"We Shall Overcome," the anthem of King's movement, was played on an organ.

By the afternoon, white persons by the score had joined the line of mourners in the predominantly Negro district just west of downtown Atlanta.

King's brother, the Rev. A. D. King, delivered an angry sermon Sunday, at the Ebenezer Baptist Church. King's father is pastor there, and King himself often preached from the pulpit.

A. D. King called his sermon "Why America May Go to Hell" and he said: "America has come to the hour now. You are a dying nation. But America has a chance: You don't have to go to hell."

He urged U.S. withdrawal from the Vietnam war and said,

"Come home, America, and make my world a better world in which to live."

King's father spoke only briefly at the service.

"You and I know these are serious, bewildering times in which we live," he said. "But don't you lose your way, and don't you ever let it get so dark that you can't see a star."

Mahalia Jackson, the Negro spiritual singer, sat next to King's mother in the crowded sanctuary. King's favorite hymn, "Precious Lord," was sung.

It was in Memphis, only minutes before he was slain by a sniper, that King requested the song be played at a rally which had been scheduled for later that night.

Two cloth banners were taped to a railing of the Atlanta expressway. Visible for blocks, the five-foot-high, 15-foot-wide banners said, "Gone but Not Forgotten" and "We Shall Overcome." Two small American flags were crossed atop it. Cars in the area drove with lighted headlights in silent memorial to King.
